Doctor's Note Reducing Falls

Although falls are a constant concern regardless of weather, individuals need to be especially careful during the wintertime. Cold temperatures can create normal environments to become unsafe. Given the dangerous nature of falls in older adults, it is important for individuals to keep steps and walkways clear of snow, ice, and any other potential hazards for falling. Be extremely cautious when using canes, walkers, or crutches on snow and ice.

BALANCE: Slipping on ice can be extremely dangerous and leaves people vulnerable to injury. Our ability to balance depends on three main components: sensations from joints and muscles, the inner ear, and vision. As we age, our reflexes slow down slightly. This makes it difficult to adapt to uneven or slippery terrains such as grass, snow, cracked pavement, gravel, and stairs. In addition, poor posture, weakness in the hips and poor eyesight can all contribute to poor balance.

Tip of the Month

End of the year deductible

Have you reviewed your insurance plan and coverage lately? At the end of the year, many patients have met most, or even all, of their insurance plan's deductible. If you have a family plan, had any surgeries, or suffer from a chronic illness, there is a good chance that you have met your deductible for the year! What does this mean?

If you have met most or all your deductible, this will greatly reduce your out-of-pocket medical expenses. For instance, the cost of physical therapy could be very minimal or even 100% covered by insurance! Physical therapy can greatly reduce not only your pain levels but also the amount of money that you ultimately spend on your pain in the long run.

At the beginning of the year, most insurances have a set amount of physical therapy visits you get a year. If you don't use these visits, you lose them!

Not sure what your deductible is or if it has been met? Call our billing staff at 307-463-0462 and let them help you figure it out!
